It's Their Right: Advance Directives

Under state and federal law, patients have basic rights to be included in determining their goals of care:

- ✓ The Right to receive all information necessary to make informed decisions about their illness, care and recommended treatments options;
- ✓ The Risks and benefits to treatments;
- ✓ The Right to freely say, "yes" or "no", to any treatment, even those that could keep them alive

True or False

Under Massachusetts State Law, a husband, wife, sibling, adult child or partner is automatically the legal decision maker. (False: Under Massachusetts State Law, a husband, wife, sibling, adult child or partner is not automatically the legal decision maker unless that person is named in the Health Care Proxy as the patient's agent, or a judge has named that person as legal guardian.)

Health Care Proxy should be completed by all adults-people who are perfectly healthy as well as those who are sick. (True: All adults are encouraged to prepare a Health Care Proxy.)

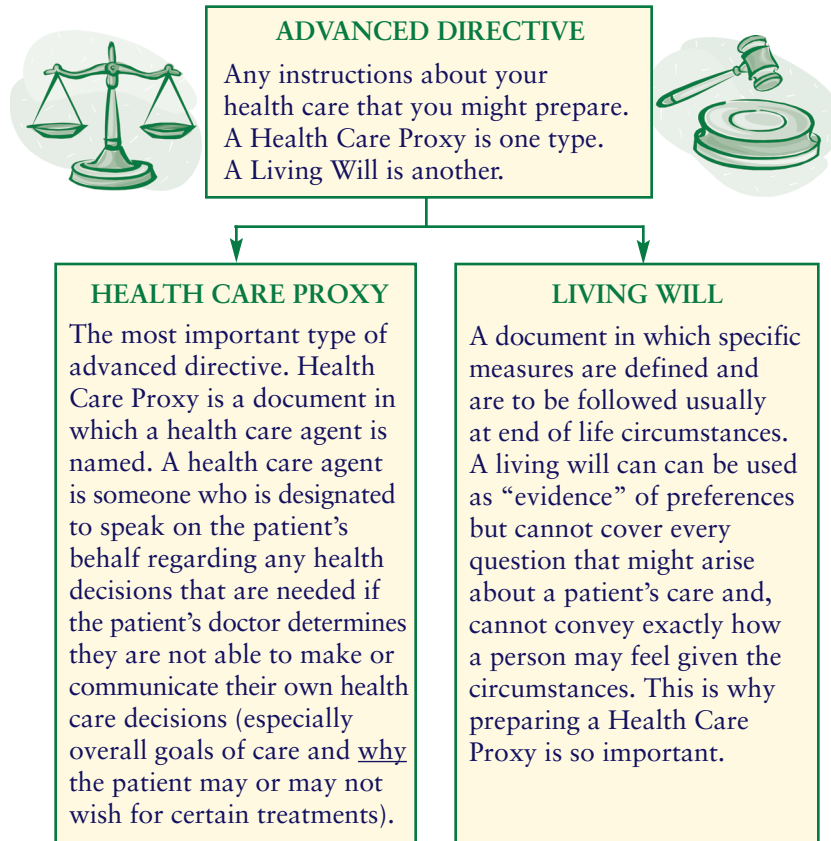

A Health Care Proxy isn't necessary if a patient already has a living will. (False: When writing a living will, it is very difficult to anticipate all of the circumstances under which complex medical decisions may need to be made and questions about a patient's preferences may still arise. A living will may not identify an individual with whom a doctor can discuss these important issues of care.)

The Health Care Proxy form requires that a notary public or an attorney be involved in order to be considered valid. (False: Neither a notary public or an attorney is needed to fill out a Health Care Proxy. It only requires 2 witnesses to sign that the person appears to be at least 18 years old, of a sound mind, and not under duress.)

Staff can sign as a witness for a patient who has filled out an advanced directive. (True: Staff members are encouraged to sign as a witness if the patient is at least 18 years old, of a sound mind, and not under duress.)

Advanced Directive vs. Health Care Proxy vs. Living Will What's The Difference?

QUICK TIPS The Right Way

- ✓ Set the example: Discuss your health care wishes and preferences with your agent.
- ✓ Provide patients with information about advance directives.
- ✓ Encourage patients to have discussions about their advanced directives:
 - ◆ Designate a health care agent. This should be someone accessible and should be a person who is able to get input from others, if that is the patient's wish.
- ✓ Contact: the departments of Social Work (7-3421), Pastoral Care (7-3030) or the Ethics Support Service (7-3095) for more information.
